ETHN 2020 (3) Flourishing, Belonging, Liberation

This course explores perspectives from the humanities (Indigenous, African-American, and Buddhist) and the sciences about what it means to flourish: an existence filled with wellness, purpose, connection, and justice. Human flourishing is considered in relation to theories of social and spiritual liberation given global legacies of colonialism, such as structural inequity and racialization. Students will engage in experiential learning where their bodies, minds, and communities are engaged as somatic laboratories and fields of exploration.

ETHN 2044 (3) Crime and Society

Explores issues related to crime, the criminal justice system, and crime-related public policy. It addresses what we know about crime and how we know it, how our society responds to crime, how the institutions designed to address crime (police, courts, corrections) function, and diversity in experiences with the criminal justice system.

Equivalent - Duplicate Degree Credit Not Granted: SOCY 2044

Additional Information: Arts Sci Gen Ed: Distribution-Social Sciences
Departmental Category: Crosscultural/Comparative Studies

ETHN 2053 (3) Introduction to BIPOC Horror

Mainstream horror often centers on white fears and problematic representations of Black, Indigenous, and People of Color (BIPOC). This class will take a different approach by highlighting horror created by BIPOC in films, novels, and comics. Employing a critical Ethnic Studies lens, focusing on the intersections of race, class, gender, sexuality, and ability, we will interrogate the various and changing meanings of fear, fright, and despair and how they inform culture, identity, and community.

Recommended: Prerequisite ETHN 2001.
