

GERMAN STUDIES - MASTER OF ARTS (MA)

The department offers an interdisciplinary MA in German studies, focusing on German-speaking central European society from the Enlightenment to the present. In addition to expertise in German literature, the faculty's interdisciplinary strengths include film, art and design, gender studies, queer studies, Black European studies, migration studies, comparative literature, philosophy, language pedagogy and translation. To get a better idea of the department's areas of specialization, prospective students are encouraged to consult the list of recent graduate seminars and the profiles of the graduate faculty and expanded graduate faculty. The faculty works closely with students to design their own course of study. Most German MA students receive a teaching assistantship and tuition waiver. The graduate associate chair of German welcomes email inquiries about the program. For contact information and more general information on the MA in German studies, please visit the program's website (<https://www.colorado.edu/gssl/german-program/>).

Students wishing to pursue the interdisciplinary master's in German studies should read the requirements tab (p. 1) of this catalog carefully.

Requirements

Program Requirements

Students who apply to the MA program but do not have approximately a B2 (or approximately seventh semester) level of German proficiency will have opportunities to achieve such proficiency while at CU.

The master's degree requires either 24 credit hours of approved coursework and a master's thesis (6 credit hours) or 30 credit hours of coursework without thesis and reading knowledge of one foreign language in addition to German and English.

All German MA students must take Theory and Practice of German Studies (GRMN 5010). All German teaching assistants must also take Applied Linguistics and Foreign Language Teaching Methodology

(GRMN 5020). For specific requirements, visit the department's German MA (<http://www.colorado.edu/gssl/german/graduate/ma/>) webpage.

Degree Plans

Plan I: Thesis Option (Standard Option)

The thesis option requires 30 credit hours, including 24 hours of coursework and 6 thesis hours. A maximum of 6 credit hours may be completed at the 3000 or 4000 level at the discretion of the associate chair of graduate studies. A maximum of 6 hours of independent study coursework may be taken with the approval of the associate chair of graduate studies.

Learning Outcomes

By the completion of the program, students will be able:

- Critically reflect on key concepts of media, history, and cultures of German-speaking societies from transnational or global perspectives.
- Conduct research and engage in critical analysis in the area of study, leveraging German language skills and to be able to express that research in ways accessible to intended readership or audience, such as the broader scholarly and/or public community.
- Expand historical understanding
- Cultivate intercultural competency.
- Demonstrate the ability to engage critically and comparatively with diverse perspectives and positionalities within German-speaking societies.
- Develop specialized competency in at least one subject area of German Studies (e.g. a period or movement in literature, film or other medium; a topic; a historical period or political movement; a pedagogical concern in second language acquisition, etc.).

- Develop specialized competency in at least one theoretical or methodological approach within German studies (e.g. literary or film analysis, feminist or queer approaches, theories of translation, etc.).

Dual Degree Program

MBA/MA in German Studies

To support the university's mission of advancing knowledge across disciplines, the Leeds School of Business and the Department of Germanic and Slavic Languages and Literatures offer a dual degree, Master of Business Administration and Master of Arts in German studies. In most cases, students should be able to complete the dual degree in three years with a total of 70 credit hours.

Prospective students must apply to and meet the application and admission requirements for each program separately. See the Department of Germanic and Slavic Languages and Literatures (<http://www.colorado.edu/gssl/german/graduate/>) website to apply to the German studies MA program, and the Leeds School of Business (<http://www.colorado.edu/business/mba/>) website to apply to the MBA program.
