EDUCATIONAL FOUNDATIONS, POLICY AND PRACTICE

Educational foundations, policy and practice (EFPP) graduate programs focus on policy analysis, curriculum theory and the application of academic disciplines—anthropology, history, law, philosophy and sociology—to the analysis of education. Programs are devoted to the critical examination of the relations among education, society, culture and government, with special emphasis on problems of race, gender, sexual diversity, social class and multiculturalism.

The master's program prepares students for further study at the PhD level and to be policy analysts for state and local organizations. The PhD program prepares students for university faculty positions and for policy analysis positions in federal, state, and local organizations.

Concurrent Degree Program:
BA in Ethnic Studies + MA in Educational Foundations, Policy and Practice

The new 4+1 Ethnic Studies and Education Concurrent Degree Program offers students an efficient and rigorous path toward earning a Bachelor's Degree in Ethnic Studies and a Master's Degree in Education in five years.

The program consists of an MA in Educational Foundations, Policy and Practice for those interested in policy and curricular issues and developing an interdisciplinary lens in graduate level research.

Admissions
Prospective students may apply at the beginning of their junior year or at anytime thereafter prior to completion of undergraduate studies. Applications are submitted to and reviewed by the School of Education.

Applicants must:
- have declared Ethnic Studies as a major,
- have completed all MAPS requirements, and
- have a minimum GPA of 3.0.

Applications
- Three letters of reference: two letters must come from professors who teach Ethnic Studies or Education courses; the third letter may be from a professor, instructor or supervisor in a community or educational setting
- Personal statement

Continuation in the Program
Once admitted, students must:
- maintain a cumulative GPA of 3.0, and
- complete 6 credits of graduate-level coursework by the second semester of senior year.

The 4+1 program has a required 5-year time limit. Students must complete all requirements for the BA by the end of their 8th semester and complete all requirements for the MA by the end of their 10th semester.
