PRESIDENTS LEADERSHIP CLASS

The Presidents Leadership Class (PLC) is a scholar community with academic and experiential curriculum with focus on leadership development through an exploration and honing of our six domains of leadership development (http://www.colorado.edu/plc/plc-advantage/how-we-develop-leadership/). Skills are developed in interdisciplinary, academic, experiential and service environments and through exposure to the key issues in Colorado leadership. PLC students are enrolled in all the schools and/or colleges across campus and participate in the PLC curriculum as a complement to their regular coursework.

The PLC is a program of CU Boulder and has a Board of Advocates representing Colorado business, educational, nonprofit and government communities.

Admission and Enrollment

Admission to the PLC is considered a great accomplishment for incoming CU Boulder students. Most PLC students are admitted prior to the beginning of their first year at CU Boulder; however, limited spots are reserved for qualified rising sophomores through a second point-of-entry application. Selection criteria include academic excellence, a growth mindset, a willingness to challenge oneself, empathy, humility and resiliency. Each year, 50 first-year students are enrolled, comprising both Colorado residents and nonresidents. Instructions on how to apply to PLC are available on the PLC website (http://www.colorado.edu/plc/). The application is part of the CU Boulder Scholarship Application through the Office of Financial Aid and Scholarship Services. The application is due by February 15. To access the application, visit the Apply Now (http://www.colorado.edu/plc/apply-now/) webpage.

Only students who are accepted into the PLC are eligible to enroll in PLC courses (PRLC) with few exceptions for for PRLC 2820, ENLP 3100, PRLC 3810 and PRLC 3800. Students receive credit for the General Education requirements for Social Sciences for PRLC 1810 and PRLC 1820. The course PRLC 3810 counts towards upper-division humanities credits for engineering students.

Academic Program

The PLC provides students with unique academic courses, purposeful experiential education and real-life experiences that:

- Support academic and professional excellence
- Grow critical thinking and analytical capabilities
- Develop extraordinary creativity in problem solving
- Hone abilities of thoughtful implementation of sustainable solutions
- Cultivate moral reasoning and ethical decision making
- Develop an appreciation for a community to which students want to impact and contribute to

PLC provides opportunities by uniting the support of the university, local and statewide leaders. The curriculum is supplemented by a substantial experiential learning curriculum and professional development opportunities.

For more information on the PLC Curriculum Strategy and the research behind it, visit the Presidents Leadership Class (http://www.colorado.edu/plc/) website.

Required Courses and Credits

PLC students tend to declare and complete the Leadership Studies Minor (LSM) (catalog.colorado.edu/undergraduate/colleges-schools/education/programs-study/leadership-studies-minor/), however, it is not a requirement of the program. Courses in addition to the courses listed below have been added to the list of courses accepted to complete PLC. Information about the other courses and many academic/experiential opportunities available is on the PLC website. (https://www.colorado.edu/plc/current-students/courses/)

The capstone course, LEAD 4000 is not required of PLC students, but is required for the LSM.
