The department offers courses in language and literature, ancient history, art and archaeology, and philosophy within several programs of study. Classics ranks among the most vibrant programs in humanistic studies at the University of Colorado, a department in which students at every level are challenged to integrate the world of scholarship into their daily lives. The department offers a minor in classics that can satisfy your needs.

Requirements

Program Requirements

The department offers a minor in classics for students who would like to study the world of antiquity but don't have the time to devote to a major. Students are subject to the College of Arts and Sciences minor requirements, including:

- a minimum of 18 credit hours, all with a grade of C- or better, in the minor,
- a minimum of 9 upper-division credit hours in the minor, and
- a minimum 2.00 GPA for courses in the minor.

Students can concentrate in either classical language/literature or classical studies. The specific requirements for completion of the classics minor are as follows:

Students should designate either Greek or Latin as the primary field of language study. Only courses above the introductory sequence (GREK 1013/GREK 1023 and LATN 1014/LATN 1024) of the primary language count towards the minor. If a student also takes the second language, all credit hours taken in that language as well as any other Greek and Latin credit hours above the 1000 level count toward the minor. If a student has learned the equivalent of the introductory sequence in the primary language before beginning language study at CU and begins language instruction in the department at the 2000 level or above, all credit hours in both languages immediately count toward the minor.
