The Program in Jewish Studies, which is open to all students of all backgrounds, Jewish and non-Jewish, explores Jewish culture, history, society, and thought from a broad, interdisciplinary perspective. The program reflects the core goals of Colorado’s flagship university: to provide an outstanding liberal arts education, to foster critical thought, and to instill a keen appreciation of humankind’s interrelatedness and diversity. At its core, the program trains students to be global citizens by studying one of the world’s oldest global peoples.

With internationally acclaimed faculty engaged in cutting-edge research and opportunities to study with leading artists, scholars, and professionals working in the field of Jewish Studies, the program offers an innovative and contemporary curriculum designed to provide a strong foundation in cultural education and to connect Jewish thought and text to action and people’s lives.

The Program offers a Bachelor of Arts in Jewish Studies (students can pursue either a culture intensive concentration or a foreign language intensive concentration), a Minor in Jewish Studies, and a Minor in Hebrew and Israel Studies.

An undergraduate degree in Jewish Studies emphasizes knowledge and awareness of:

- the history of global Jewish communities over time, including the history of Israel and Palestine, biblical and medieval Jewish history, history of Jewish communities in the Mediterranean, the history of the Holocaust, and post-Holocaust American Judaism
- dimensions of Jewish culture across variant Jewish communities, including differences in Jewish cultural practices, Jewish music and film, and Jewish philosophies, religious practices, mysticisms, and thought
- Jewish literature from the biblical period to the present, including Israeli literature, the Hebrew origins of western civilization, and contemporary Jewish literature, and global languages of the Jewish people, including Hebrew, Arabic, Spanish, French, Italian, Russian, German, Ladino, and others (for students pursuing the foreign language intensive concentration).

In addition, students completing the degree in Jewish Studies are expected to develop:

- fundamental skills in critical thinking, comparative analysis, oral and written expression
- a well-rounded perspective of the diversity of the Jewish experience, and
- professional skills intended to aid students in their career ambitions.

Jewish Studies alums have gone onto careers in politics, international policy, criminal justice, non-profit, business, education, law, public relations, administration, marketing, real estate, and journalism. Many have pursued additional education though graduate programs and professional schools.

The study of Jewish culture, society, history, and religion is, by its nature, comparative and interdisciplinary. Our program offers many cross-listed classes with other departments on campus to facilitate a well-rounded learning experience. Many of our courses also satisfy core requirements.

The program also offers many professional development opportunities to help students find employment after graduation in a field that fits their interests. The Internship in Jewish Studies (JWST 3930) pairs students with local organizations based on the student’s long-term career goals. Majors are also required to complete a Capstone in Jewish Studies (JWST 4000) in which they design an artistic project or research paper under the supervision of a faculty mentor that serves as a summation of their work in Jewish Studies. Majors and minors are eligible to join the Jewish Studies Undergraduate Student Advisory Board. Jewish Studies also highly encourages students to study abroad and has instituted two Global Seminars, one to Istanbul and the other to Israel.

The Program in Jewish Studies is growing rapidly and new courses are continually being added. Visit www.colorado.edu/jewishstudies (https://www.colorado.edu/jewishstudies) for the most current course information.

Course codes for this program are JWST and HEBR.
